

American Food Safety Institute

November, 2009

Dear New Jersey Food Protection Official,

We are pleased to introduce our organization and services to you. We are a member of NJEHA and we provided the certification courses for regulators at the NJEHA conference in 2008. With the Chapter 24 deadline approaching, we are now offering public food manager certification courses in New Jersey on a regular basis. Enclosed is a copy of our "last chance 2009" schedule with courses in Newark, Totowa/Patterson, New Brunswick, and Cherry Hill (Philadelphia area).

Food manager certification is an opportunity to improve food safety and sanitation. We have served as subject matter experts for all three Conference for Food Protection examinations (National Registry, ServSafe and Thompson). To date, we have certified well over 100,000 industry professionals and 3,000 public health regulators.

Aside from our unique courses and bi-lingual training, we strive to make certification as convenient and productive as possible. Our phones are answered by bi-lingual service staff, with no voice mail during business days/hours. We accept credit cards and we ensure that students receive study materials prior to class, via the web or priority mail.

We ask that you include our organization on any listings of certification providers that you may provide. Please contact us if you need a course in your jurisdiction, especially in Spanish. We have a Spanish class scheduled in Newark on December 18th, 2009.

Thank you for this opportunity to serve you and your food service operators. We invite your inquires and look forward to working with you to improve food safety.

Sincerely,

David Nash, PhD, MPH,CP-FS, Director
